JACOB PODSTAWA

SENIOR WAREHOUSE OPERATIONS MANAGER, TURN 14 DISTRIBUTION

Jacob Podstawa grew up in central NJ, where his early years of management began in restaurants and nightclubs at the Jersey shore. Podstawa attended New Jersey City University, where he received his bachelor's degree in business management.

After graduation, he left the restaurant world and began his career in distribution as a department supervisor for a global wire, cable and security distributor in Cranbury, NJ. Podstawa used his education and experience to become an operations manager in multiple distribution centers within the company's network. While in that role, he gained experience as a leader in building management transitions and became a member of the company's internal audit team.

Podstawa then took on a role in production control at Tesla's Gigafactory, before he moved to join Turn 14's growing team. Since joining Turn 14, Podstawa helped lead the opening and expansion of a new and fully automated distribution center in Reno, NV. There he enjoyed developing structure and processes to support Turn 14's rapid growth. This allowed Podstawa to move back home to the east coast and take on the senior operations manager role at Turn 14's Hatfield, PA distribution center.
