CORY MOYER
Sr. Logistics Manager –
North America

Air Products

Cory Moyer is the Senior Manager, North America Logistics at Air Products, where he leads teams responsible for logistics strategy, inventory management, transportation optimization, delivery scheduling, and logistics process improvement across North America. He is responsible for developing the tools, analytics, and business processes that support safe, reliable, and efficient product delivery while helping drive continuous improvement across Air Products' North American supply chain network. He is passionate about developing people, solving complex business challenges, and using technology and analytics to create practical business solutions.

Since joining Air Products, Cory has held positions across vendor management, asset management, and logistics operations. Throughout his career, he has focused on leveraging data-driven decision-making to improve operational performance, optimize network resources, and support strategic business growth. His experience spans forecasting, budgeting, supply chain planning, logistics operations, and organizational leadership.

Cory holds an MBA from Lehigh University and a bachelor's degree in Logistics from Penn State University. He lives in eastern Pennsylvania with his wife and two sons. Outside of work, he enjoys watching youth sports and spending time in the woods of Pennsylvania.
